The exhibit is not encouraging. The reports represent over 500 points in the state, and indicate not to exceed 84 per cent, of an average yield. A lake special from Quincy, Ill., says: The excitement has been intensified instead of allayed. A Wabash train due here at 1:50 brought in another lot of non-union men. The strikers had been advised and were at the depot. A telegram was sent to the men to get off the train a mile north of the depot. The strikers heard of this and were there as soon as the train. When the men began to get off the train rocks began to fly and shots were fired. Several non-union men were hit and one knocked off the platform and beaten dangerously. No arrests thus far.

The Rev. J. E. Seales, of New York, is one of the most widely-known and highly esteemed of Methodist ministers.

Mr. Seales says: "I am impressed that it is a duty to say that a remedy has been discovered that is indeed a marvelous success. My son was greatly afflicted with Rheumatism, and suffered so severely that at times he was obliged to have morphine injected into his arm to get relief. While in this condition he discovered a remedy which effected immediate relief, and a permanent cure. He has since remained well, and a permanent cure. I have also cured a number of persons suffering with Rheumatism, and the result has been immediate relief, and a permanent cure. I will give you his name, Wm. F. Corbitt, of the George St. M. L. Church, New Haven, Conn., who was suffering with this terrible disease. I will give you his name, words as written to my son, wishing him to publish the fact for the benefit of others suffering with the same disease."

A CASUAL CHAT

With Leading Merchants and Physicians on the Proper Source of Water Supply.
—The Feeder Canal Water the Favorite—The Necessity of Expending Money Condemned.

As the water question is quite important now THE SENTINEL representative strolled about yesterday and had a casual chat with leading business men and physicians. The question was put to the gentlemen met, "are you in favor of a water supply from above or below the feeder dam?" and the answers will be found interesting and shows to what a degree the feeder canal source of supply is favored by the men who pay the most taxes:

The first gentleman encountered was A. C. Huestis, the wholesale grocer, who believes the water supply should come from above the feeder dam through the canal. It was the only sensible and feasible plan proposed.

George H. Wilson—The best water in the river is certainly above the feeder, and only the question of cost should deter the city from going there. When the canal was first offered it would have been wise for the city to have purchased it. The canal could be cleaned so as to purify and filter a flow of water through it.

Hon. O. P. Morgan, the hardware merchant—There is only one source of water supply, and that through the feeder canal from above the feeder dam.

Edwin Evans, railroad contractor and builder—The water for the people of Fort Wayne should come from above the feeder dam, and the city will yet have to buy the canal to get it.

Hon. Montgomery Hamilton—All authorities agree that if a water supply is to be taken from a river it should be procured miles above all possible impurities. There is no very good water here, but the best and only water is in the St. Joe river above the feeder. It could flow through a clean open channel slowly and purify itself. The canal is also admirably situated for a flow of water into filter galleries and fortunately fitted to propel pumping machinery. From the feeder canal water would flow into the filter basin from the river it would have to be pumped.

W. D. Schiefer—I don't know much about the question, but if a water supply from above the feeder is the best why buy the canal.

Christ Tresselt—I am not prepared to express an opinion.

J. B. Monning—The city will have to buy the feeder canal before she gets a water supply, which should come from above the feeder dam.

George DeWald—I want my water supply from above the feeder dam. While in the council I served on a committee with Messrs. Kimball and Bowser and we investigated the matter. Our report to the council was that the feeder canal was the only source of water supply offered the city. We personally examined the situation and understood it.

Joseph A. M. Storm—The city needs a water supply and it is time the question is settled.

J. M. Kane—Tap the St. Joe river above the French brewery and pay for the property.

P. H. Knue—I favor tapping the river above the French brewery.

J. F. Wm. Meyer, the druggist—I believe there is no water supply but the feeder canal and have always recommended it.

W. A. Foote—cigar manufacturer—The water supply should come through the feeder canal from above the feeder dam.

Robert Stratton—The supply should come from above the brewery. At one time the city should have purchased the canal.

E. C. Rurode—The water supply should come from above the paper mill, and, of course, the feeder canal is the proper channel through which to get it.

Joe Clark—The water supply should come from above the feeder dam, and the city should buy the canal. They talk of going 800 feet above the French brewery, to the "ripple," why the ripple is up the river five miles.

Arthur Dodge—Move the pumping house and get the supply from above the brewery.

Gen. Sam B. Sweet—I have no choice.

J. H. Simonson—Get the water above all impurities.

A. F. Glutting—The best water in the St. Joe river is above the feeder dam, and the way to get and control it is to purchase the feeder canal.

Hon. R. C. Bell—I favor the supply of water from above the paper mill. It is only pure there. The nonsensical expenditure of money should be stopped.

Dennis Monahan—The city should get its supply of water from the head waters of the St. Joe river, through the canal feeder.

C. A. Munson—I am an original canal man and favored the purchase of the ditch from the Pittsburgh railroad bridge to the Ohio state line, including the feeder canal. It is the only water power in the county. Messrs. Hettler, White and Baiter opposed the purchase of the canal then and had Henry Edgerton analyze the river water to back their opposition. The only water supply the city has is through the feeder and if it had been purchased in the first place $100,000 could have been saved.

C. R. Woodworth—The canal is the only source if the dam is all right. The city should have purchased the canal in the first place.

Charles F. Mahler—About $100,000 has been squandered on a senseless water supply. The Lane plan should be adopted and the canal purchased right out.

Ernest Beach—Have not examined the question sufficiently to express an opinion.

H. C. Graffo—I have always favored the canal as a source of supply and see no reason to change now after $100,000 has been thrown away on another scheme.

Sidney C. Lumbard—The city's water supply should come from above the feeder dam through the canal and many men who have examined the situation up there say so.

Chas. Knight, manager of the Fort Wayne Gas Works—The city should get its supply from the feeder dam through the canal. If the city goes to the St. Joe river, she will be in just such a fix as Leipsport. That city tapped the river above the Uhl dam and had to pay very dear for the luxury. But outside of that question the feeder water is the best.

Hon. E. L. Chittenden—I want the water from below the brewery where it is the vilest. I use it only to sprinkle my lawn and flower beds, it is all the richer for the grass and paucy blossoms.

Hon. Charles McCulloch—Was in favor of purchasing the feeder when it was offered by the railroad company through Mr. Bell for a very low figure, but since other parties interfered and have not been willing to sell only a water right, I prefer to go above the brewery if it can be done without too great expense.

John Mohr, jr.—I favor the purchase of the feeder canal as a source of water supply, if it can be had at a reasonable price.

Daniel Shordon—Water from the feeder dam, through the canal, can not be excelled here. I have always favored that source.

Peter Morganthaler—The best water, supply is above the feeder dam. There is where the city should go.

F. K. Cosgrove—The feeder canal supply is the best offered.

Col. George Humphrey—I am strongly in favor of a water supply from the feeder dam. It is the best the city can ever get.

Dr. J. S. Gregg—A supply above the French brewery is the most reliable. The canal or feeder dam cannot be relied on.

Wm. Keough—I have always believed the canal the only and best source of supply.

J. M. Moritz, of the Aveline house—I believe the canal supply from above the feeder to be the best, it is possible to obtain. I certainly favor that plan.

George J. E. Mayer—The city should get its water above the French brewery. The canal is not safe, besides the water is as good below as above the feeder dam.

Capt. J. B. White—The feeder canal is the only source of water supply and the city will have to own it sooner or later. I always favored a water supply from the feeder.

Mr. D. M. Miller, of the Aveline house, who are large water consumers for drinking and culinary purposes, says that from his judgment the only permanent water supply to be obtained is from the canal feeder. As to the canal water being dirty and filthy, "Why," he says, "we have used the canal water for FIFTY YEARS, and it is far superior to that being used at the present time. We have a line of pipe which runs from the house to the old canal, the water being driven through by a hydraulic ram to a filtering tank on the top floor, and was only discontinued when the canal was abandoned. Aside from any prejudice, the city should be supplied with water through the feeder canal."

Louis Fox—I have always favored the purchase of the feeder canal. I can see no other source of supply fit to expend money on.

A. C. Trentman—I favor the Lane plan, which should have been adopted in the first place. If the city does not adopt that plan now it will have to later. The only way to get water is from the feeder dam, through the canal, as Mr. Lane advised. If the city goes elsewhere she simply bites her nose off to spite her face. That illustrates it.

Robert Ogden, plumber and gas fitter—I certainly favor getting a water supply from above the feeder dam. If New York capitalists owned the feeder canal it would have been purchased long ago. But as home capitalists own it, prejudice prevents the council from doing the right thing. There is no plentiful or safe water supply outside the feeder canal.

D. C. Fisher—Have always believed the city would own the feeder canal. It will never have a water supply till it does.

DR. A. F. BUCHANAN.
To the Editor of THE SENTINEL.

I think the only water supply channel the city has is the canal feeder. All money and time spent on other schemes is wasted. There is no pure water below the feeder dam.

DR. B. S. WOODWORTH.
To the Editor of THE SENTINEL.

The water above the feeder is certainly purer than the water below it and if it is a question of the best water, I am certainly in favor of a supply from above the feeder canal.

DR. T. J. DILLS.
Fort Wayne, Ind., May 9, 1884.

To the Editor of THE SENTINEL: Yours of this date requesting me to express my opinion upon the best site on the St. Joe river from which to draw our water supply, duly received.

I take pleasure in so doing, as also to name above the canal feeder dam. In thus expressing my opinion I have no desire to join issue with any one who may champion the Rudisill pool or other site below the Feeder dam.

I have been so long and intimately acquainted with this stream comparative freedom from organic matter above this point, as also so cognizant of the source and of nature, the stream's pollution below, that I feel warranted in making this statement.

Yours truly,
T. J. DILLS.

DR. C. B. STEMMER.
To the Editor of THE SENTINEL.

Having been requested by you to state my views on the important subject of the water supply for this city, I have made some investigation and find that the present source of supply is insufficient and, in a sanitary view, dangerous. Wells are always a dangerous source of supply for a city, for the reason that should any poison, either of animal or vegetable matter, get into them it could not be easily removed, and as the present supply is from such source and from the "Spy Run," it is, in my opinion, a dangerous one to the public health, and should be changed immediately.

As to the best source of supply for the use of the city I am of the opinion that there is but one which commends itself to the public and that is above the "feeder dam," in the St. Joe river, and in my opinion those in authority should at once make the necessary arrangements to bring the water from that source. This opinion is only given from a sanitary view of the subject and in the interest of public health.

C. B. STEMMER.

DR. H. V. SWERINGEN.
To the Editor of THE SENTINEL.

I know nothing of the character for purity or impurity of the water above or below the feeder dam. Common sense, however, would dictate that if either locality was to be made a source of supply, the former should be chosen, as it is well known that organic matter, in a decomposed condition, constitutes the worst kind of contamination, and abounds below the feeder dam.

Perfectly pure water is extremely hard to find; even rain water and in fact, artificially distilled water is not absolutely pure. They approach nearer to absolute purity than all other kinds of water. During the cholera visitation of 1853-'54, an experiment was made on half a million of the population of London. It so happened that a certain district of London was supplied by two rival water companies, the two mains running off side by side, and some houses taking from the one and some from the other. The whole inhabitants were living alike in all respects save one—that one company drew its supply from high up the Thames, where it was of comparative excellence, while the other drew its water from low down the river, where it was profusely contaminated with city drainage. Among this population there were more than 4,000 deaths from cholera, and when the epidemic had subsided, an inquiry was made from house to house, as to those deaths, and as to the water supply of the several houses where they had occurred. The inquiry was conducted with every precaution to avoid sources of fallacy, and the result was, that in the one set of houses the mortality per 10,000 of the population was 37, in the other set of houses it was 130; that is to say, the cholera death was 3½ times as great in the set of houses receiving water supply from below in the Thames river. Now, I leave yourself and the public to make the application of the foregoing to the water works question now being agitated in our city; whether to get our supply from above or below the feeder.

H. V. SWERINGEN, A. M., M. D.

One hundred other citizens were seen but had not examined the subject sufficiently to express an opinion.

The Water Works Again.

To the Editor of THE SENTINEL:

It is announced in the Gazette, as by authority, that the water works question is now settled. That all discussion of the question is at an end. That the friends of the Cook plan, the Lane plan, the canal ring and the river ring must cease their bickering and all follow the Fort Wayne Gazette, and acquiesce in its settlement of the question of a water supply. Before the books are closed please allow me to say a few words on the

COOK PLAN.

In regard to that plan it will surprise many people to learn that Mr. Cook never had any plan aside from what seemed to be popular, and that he never contributed one single valuable and original idea in building our water works. Instead of the consulting engineer giving the people the benefit of his wisdom and experience, he was largely dependent upon the very people who looked to him for guidance. Mr. Cook profited much by his Fort Wayne experiments but they have been costly ones to the city. So far as his original ideas have not been carried out, the water works have, I believe been a success. The great mistake has been in building the works according to the Cook plan, and the trustees ought to have taken the matter out of his hands sooner.

WATER SUPPLY.

To show what Mr. Cook's ideas were as to the original supply let me quote from his preliminary report some of the glittering generalities of which he seemed to be prolific. He said: "When we reflect that water constitutes three-fourths of the human organization, and that 85 per cent. of our blood and 80 per cent. of our food is water or its elements, its purity and healthfulness become a desideratum of almost vital importance."

Your continuity to several sources of copious supply leaves you free to select whichever may seem best suited to your various needs—either from a single source, or by a composite arrangement—such, for instance, as to take your main supply from wells with an auxiliary connection, to meet extraordinary contingencies, from Spy Run or the St. Joseph river.

For further information, he then referred the reader to a report made by Prof. Duensing, of an analysis of four specimens of water taken from the following sources:

First. From a well near Eighth street.

Second. Out of Spy Run, 300 feet above the aqueduct.

Third. From the canal, at the French brewery.

Fourth. From the St. Joseph river, at the French brewery.

In regard to hardness, the specimens showed the following results: Well water, 97 degrees; Spy Run, 56 degrees; canal feeder water, 52 degrees; river water, 56 degrees. Thus the well water was the hardest and the river water in the canal was the softest.

As to organic matter, the specimens analyzed are as follows: Well water, almost entirely free from it; Spy Run, some; canal and river, "an amount which makes them suspicious."

WRITERS.

Mr. Hettler says that the original Cook plan contemplated using a well for the first year or so; then Spy Run and wells, and after that the river. Mr. Hettler would have us believe that Mr. Cook intended to have us spend $15,000 to $20,000 the first year for water supply! The plan is objectionable enough, but no one except Mr. Hettler has put that interpretation on it. Let us see what Mr. Cook's plan really was. "I was present," he says, "at a pumping test of one of these wells."

Its inner diameter is six feet; and it extends one foot below the top of water-bearing gravel. Its maximum capacity (June, 1873) was forty-five gallons per minute, or 1,362 gallons per square foot in twenty-four hours.

At 400 gallons in twenty-four hours per square foot, a daily pumping of 3,000,000 gallons would require a gravel area of 7,500 square feet—equal to six wells, each thirty feet in diameter, extending six feet below the top of water gravel. With an auxiliary supply from other sources, and the mere dependence on the wells for ordinary needs, two or at least three such wells might meet your requirements for several years. Or, by increasing the number of wells your entire supply might be drawn from this source."

A well was accordingly dug, having not merely 7,500 feet, but an area probably five times as large as Mr. Cook had estimated would be good for 3,000,000 gallons daily, and costing about $15,000. As soon as the works began to pump 700,000 or 800,000 gallons per day the well proved unreliable, and resort was at once had to which has cost some $5,000 more. This has also proved to be inadequate, and we must now go to the St. Joseph river. Mr. Cook, following the advice of Mr. J. L. Williams, and endorsed by Mr. Hettler, advised that the point of intake from the river be above the French brewery. Mr. Williams wanted the pipe extended one-third of a mile, about 1,760 feet, above the brewery, while Mr. Hettler thinks 400 feet would be enough. It would be very much better to stop at the distance named by Mr. Williams, 1,760 feet, than to go to the "ripple," of which we hear so much. For to reach the first ripple above the French brewery with a pipe of sufficient capacity to supply the city would cost not less than $250,000. Mr. Hettler, in advocating as part of the Cook plan, claims that the water below the brewery cannot be used by reason of twenty years deposits of filth and slime from the brewery. A little reflection will convince anyone that if the floods and currents of the river and the use of the water from the Rudisill mill, which takes water from the bottom of the pool, has been unable to dislodge these accumulations they will be apt to remain there whether the pool is tapped above or below the brewery. In a dry season if the water in the river should be so low the city will use the entire flow of the river, and at such a time, at least, whatever fluid filth there may be in the pool will be as likely to flow to the pipe if placed above as it will if placed below the brewery.

So it will be seen that we have expended already about $200,000 for a water supply and are now about to spend as much more. There are members of the council who predict that the placing of a pipe for supply to the river will cost in damages to land and for water not less than $40,000. Mr. Hettler, however, claims that the work can be done and damages paid for very much less.

THE RESERVOIR.

When we consider the reservoir, the brilliancy of the Cook plan shines with unique lustre. A reservoir seemed to be wanted and Mr. Cook decided that it was necessary to our water works system because, it was urged, "it will practically double the life of your pumping machinery, relieve your pipe distribution from irregular and excessive strains, and otherwise result in considerable annual saving in coal, wages, etc. It would also answer a good purpose as a subsidiary or settling reservoir in the event of your using river water. By constructing a filter bed near the reservoir to be supplied from it, the filter can safely be much smaller, as it would be used to filter the domestic supply only, using unfiltered water for fire service." Accordingly the reservoir was built. One pipe was connected with the reservoir for the double purpose of supplying water to, and drawing water from it. How Mr. Cook intended to average it so that filtered water should be drawn out of this one pipe through the house taps for domestic use and unfiltered water through the fire hydrants, he never explained. It is known that in some cities a double line of pipe is laid, one fed from a reservoir for domestic use and one for supplying fire hydrants, directly from the pumps, he forgot to mention this most essential part of the scheme.

PIPE IT.

The pipe system at the reservoir was laid according to the Cook plan, and with Mr. Cook's express guaranty that it was perfectly safe—not through solid earth below the reservoir, but on some twelve or fifteen feet of made earth; not with flexible joints so rigid that within a few days after being laid, they snapped apart from the great weight above and the yielding foundation under them. Three times these pipes have broken, and three times they have been repaired. This part of the Cook plan, so popular with some people, has cost the tax payers $5,000.

Mr. Hamilton has a fair conception of the water question, but he does not seem to realize that the reservoir is the greatest mistake in connection with the water works. Including the canal, which will cost $24,000, the reservoir will cost altogether not far from $100,000. Indeed some say that when finished to be of any value it will have cost more, very much more than $100,000. When we reflect that the annual expense and interest will not be less than $7,500 per year, fully ten times as much as it will be worth to the city, the "far-sighted wisdom of the Cook plan" will be once apparent, provided, of course, that the reservoir don't burst some night and paint the town yellow.

There were other defects in the plan for machinery and placing of mains that the trustees have had to remedy at quite an expense. Some of the officers do not hesitate to say that if Mr. Cook had never been employed the city would have had better and cheaper works. The bulk of the civil engineering was done by John Ryal, Moses Lane and the city engineer, Mr. Bracknridge. For this work Mr. Cook received the credit and the pay, $5,000. But all this is of value only as a warning for the future. The plan of no man should be pursued blindly. There has been a large sum wasted already on wells, Spy Run and the reservoir and the new council ought to look the matter over carefully and see that those mistakes are corrected as far as possible.

SOCIETY.

A Quiet Week—Weddings, Past and Prospective—Feminine vs. Mas- culine Courage.

Art Notes—Personal, Social and General Gossip.

The past week has been unusually dull in social circles. Numerous little impromptu gatherings and quiet parties and an exceptional wedding have been the only diversions known to society this past few days. Several events of importance are promised in the near future.
Several in a matrimonial way will, no doubt, create consternation in the camp of local gossip, to whom the little god of love has not revealed his latest conquests. Apropos of weddings, from Mother Eve down, was there ever a bride who was not quite composed during the trying ordeal? Either bright, blushing and nervous, or dignified and self-possessed as her chief characteristics dictate, or groom, who, through extreme trepidation, was not lost to all surroundings during the supreme half-hour before the fateful words had been spoken. Superior in physical strength, but unhappy cowards in sentiment. Historical events would perhaps show a much happier blending, could these well known attributes of the sexes be reversed.

The perennial "Hazel Kirke" last Saturday was greeted with her usual quota of admirers. The interest centered in the great, though ancient, Coudock, Ada Gillman and the irrepressible and altogether fascinating Mr. Hopper. Theatrical announcements come but rarely now. But instead the thrilling contests of the four-horse chariot races, the camel, the monkey and the charming baby elephant, and the strange display of human creatures and real man-eating canibals —the old, old story, but very catching to youthful ears—while forlorn meles and spinster aunts are assiduously cultivating half-forgotten nephews and nieces for the occasion.

Last Tuesday morning, at the Second Presbyterian church, occurred the nuptials of Dr. G. W. McCaskey and Miss Louise Shugie, in the presence of a large assemblage of friends. Rev. W. H. Mc-Farland performed the ceremony, which, though brief, was impressive. The church was elaborately decorated with hot-house flowers and carefully darkened, so the toilets of the guests appeared to the best advantage in the becoming gaudiness. The ushers, Messrs.
Henry Mordhurst, Henry Freeman and Will Diffenderfer, were handsome and gallant in full evening dress. From the church the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride, on West Berry street, where congratulations were extended and an elegant wedding breakfast was served before the happy couple left on the noon train for Chicago. Among the guests present were Dr. and Mrs. Kelsey, of Louisville, Ky., Dr. and Mrs. Sturgis, Huntington, Mr. and Mrs. William Hood, the Misses Minnie Hood, Mollie Irwin, Jennie Smith, Lima, O., Martie Roberts,
Mamie McLaughlin, May Diffenderfer, Dr. Moffat, Rev. W. H. McFarland,
Henry Mordhurst, Henry Freeman and
Will Diffenderfer. Mr. and Mrs. Mc-Caskey returned Thursday and are pleasantly settled in their cozy home, No. 22 West Berry street.

Mrs. L. B. Root gave a pleasant whist party Thursday evening in honor of a young lady from New York, who is her guest. Those present were the Misses Joe and Grace Edgerton, Miss Foss Switzer, Messrs. Glenn Edgerton, Ed.
Carey and Ed. Morris.

Bishop Knickerbocker officiated at Bluffton last Monday evening, after which a reception was tendered him at the Bliss house. He was accompanied from this city by Rev. and Mrs. W. N. Webb, B. D. Angel, Mrs. C. Long, Mrs. F. P.
Randall, Misses Carrie and Minnie Graves, J. S. Hendrie and Leonard Wales.

The Shakespearean club, who were last week entertained by Mrs. Frank Wel-ling, will hold their next meeting at the residence of Mrs. Willis Maier. During the session last week a very interesting essay, a criticism upon the general conception of Hamlet, was read by a charming little lady on West Berry street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ogden Smith, who sail from Europe this month, and Miss Lily Hoffman, are expected in this city this night, the guests of friends.

Miss Jessie Hanna received some very elegant presents her birthday last Saturday, and pleasantly celebrated, assisted by a number of friends in the evening.

Rev. S. S. Orpen will officiate at Trinity church Ascension day, when the handsome Knights Templar will appear in full regalia.

The many friends of Mrs. Judge Fay will regret to learn that she is very low and her life despaired of.

Mrs. Dr. Morris goes to Kendallville
Monday, to spend a week with friends.

Misses Moore and Emma Hoagland are visiting friends in Toledo.

Mrs. Frank Welling left last Wednesday for Niles, Mich., to remain several weeks, the guest of friends.

Dr. Ed Morris is considered one of the most finished amateur pianists in the city.

Dr. and Mrs. Kelsey, who were here to attend the McCaskey-Sturgis nuptials, have returned to Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. Conger has returned from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Gorham, and is at the Hamilton house.

Mr. Willis Maier has been making extensive improvements in his residence on West Washington street.

Mrs. W. N. Webb will not go east until June. Mr. and Mrs. Webb are now home keeping at the rectory.

Mr. Leonard Wales will be associated in business with the popular pianist, Mr. Gilbert.

Mrs. Noble returned to her home in Goshen last week after an extended visit with friends in the city.

The Misses Edgerton gave a charming whist party last Wednesday evening.

Mrs. M. Nirdlinger is convalescing from a recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Vesoy, of Decatur, Ind., are the guests of Mrs. G. W.
Seawey.

The many friends of S. R. Alden, the popular attorney, will be glad to learn he is convalescing from a serious illness.

The Misses Coburn and Rawles were last week the guests of Miss Ellison, of West Wayne street.

S. E. Morse, while in the city, was tendered a reception, a stag party, by his host, Mrs. R. C. Bell.

Capt. and Mrs. McKinnis are expected home from New York next week. Mrs.
McKinnis is much improved in health.

Rev. and Mrs. Northrup, who were in Peru several days this week, returned home Thursday morning.

Mr. L. Graft and son, of New York, who have been in the city the guests of Max Nirdlinger and family, returned home Friday.

Mrs. Frank Pond arrived Thursday from Chicago, and will be the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shoaf, of East Berry street.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Maier will attend the May festival in Chicago the 27th inst.

Dr. George W. McCaskey and bride are now at home to their friends, at No.
27 West Berry street.

Miss Mollie Keegan has returned home, after quite a lengthy visit with relatives at Hannibal, Mo.

There will be a wedding in Trinity church the 27th that will surprise Mrs.
Grundy exceedingly.

A very elegant party will be given by society people on West Wayne street next week.

That prospective weddings and their attendant circumstances are the subject of considerable comment.

That the doubts, fears, hopes and anticipation of a well-known bachelor are over now, and the event is supposed to occur when the June roses bloom.

That a handsome benedict of the west end is mildly fated and petted by his coterie of lady friends to the disapproba-tion of a prominent member of his family.

That it is not true that a well known society lady has broken her troth for a ministerial looking young gentleman recently arrived in the city.

Several young men are said to be ex-cruciated over the fact that young Melodist college students are said to be boarding at the homes of their best girls.

Society people are already on the qui-vive for the opening night of the Masonic Temple opera house, which will be strictly a full dress affair.

A prominent gallery in the city will soon open a studio for the exhibition of the works of art of home artists.

Palpitation or rapid beating of the heart followed by periods of complete cessation, is caused chiefly by nervous-

NOTED CRIMINALS.

The Style of Men Who Have Been a Source of Terror to the Places Which They Infest—Their Visits to Fort Wayne.

Whether the world is growing better or worse is a question which is too deep for an easy or speedy solution but certain it is that crime is of more frequent occurrence of late years than before. Whether it is because of the increase in the population of the country cannot be said, but undoubtedly the progress of crime and criminal work keeps full place with the progress of the country. The criminal class seem to grow bolder with each succeeding year and the brains, which might, if rightly applied, be a credit to the country, are used in planning and engineering schemes for the accomplishment of some robbery or the murder of some unfortunate individual who has incurred their displeasure. So it is. All our cities are filled with thieves and murderers; men with whom a human life is of no more consequence than that of the vilest reptile which inhabits the earth.

While Fort Wayne has been rather fortunate in escaping from the worst portion of this class, of which mention has been made, in the sense of being their home, yet she has been cursed with a number of the fraternity, as every city is, and has been greatly honored with visits from some of the most noted criminals of their day. Men have walked the streets of this city, who, if their identity had been known, would have caused a shudder to accompany the mention of their names, and whose presence would have been avoided as would that of the most poisonous snake.
In many instances they have come and gone and the people have been none the wiser, but there has been a few exceptions to this rule where the true character of the men were known to the authorities and who were shadowed from the time they arrived until they were arrested or compelled to leave the town.

In a few instances their stay has not, by any means, been brief but has covered a period of many months, and, in a few cases, even a number of years, before they could be arrested on any charge.

Among the most noted of the men of this class who have ever been in the city, or at least of the number whose real character was known to the police was Frank Rande, the terror of the Wabash.
The history of Rande is familiar to all and needs not be repeated here, only in a brief manner. He was educated for the ministry, and spent considerable time in preparing himself for that life but he came to the conclusion that he could not go into that work with his mind and heart fully bent upon the work of saving souls and he changed his plans, and, in a short time he was an indis-criminatingly engaged in planning how to destroy that which he had intended to save. He drifted into a life of crime, no one knows exactly in what manner. He boasted, before his death, of having killed thirteen men. As is well known he suspended himself between the ceiling and the floor of a cell in the Joliet penitentiary a few months ago, and thus ended a life of crime.

In the year 1872 a stranger came to this city and remained in and around here for some time. He had no visible occupation, although he claimed to be a gunsmith. He was known as Frank Van Zandt. One night a gun shop, owned by Geary & Colson, on Main street, was broken open and a lot of tools were stolen. A few days after, word was sent to Marshal Kelley to come to the Pittsburg depot, and that he was wanted to make an arrest. Arriving there he met one of the proprietors of the store which had been lately robbed, and who told him that the man he pointed out inside the depot was the man wanted. The man was Frank Van Zandt. Mr. Kelley walked in and told him that he wanted him and the fellow evinced no surprise, only asking to be allowed to step into the water closet for a few moments, which request was granted. He remained there until the marshal became tired of waiting for him and he finally brought him out, but as it afterwards was proven, the prisoner had remained there long enough to accomplish his purpose, for on the way down town he struck Mr.
Kelley a terrible blow on the side of the head, the marks of which that gentleman yet exhibits. The weapon which he used was a very heavy butt to which a string was attached. After striking Mr. Kelley he ran across the street and was about to strike him in the same manner when Mr. Kelley ran over and prevented the assault, and marched the prisoner to jail.

His preliminary trial was held before Justice Ryan, and as the fellow was about to be taken back to jail a deputy begged to be allowed to have the honor of escorting him. This was granted and Van Zandt was taken out to a cab which was to convey him to the place. He stepped in on one side and quick as a flash darted out on the other and made a desperate break for liberty.
In a moment a great crowd had started after him and he was speedily overtaken by Mike Connors, of the fire department, who brought him back and placed him in the hands of the officers. In searching him it was found that he was a perfect arsenal. He wore a belt strapped around his waist in which he carried two heavy revolvers and a large knife. An express receipt was also found among his goods, and Mr. Kelley telegraphed to Milwaukee and recovered the goods which he had shipped there, many of which were the tools from the gun shop here, and also a trunk containing a quantity of silverware and ladies apparel which had been stolen from a family at Logansport. It was then learned that the prisoner was the notorious

FRANK RANDE,

who had created a reign of terror in every city to which the evil genius had directed his presence. For this crime Rande received a five years sentence in the penitentiary, which he served. During his imprisonment he made numerous threats against the lives of those who had caused him to be placed there and also against Mr. Charles Mayne, of Huntington, who was then the warden.
After his release he went to Toledo, from which place he wrote threatening letters to Mr. Kelley over the name of Vincent. Among them were the following which THE SENTINEL published at the time:

TOLEDO, O., May 21st, 1877.

Mr. Kelley, Fort Wayne, Ind.: I wish you to send my seven shot Spencer rifle gun, left in your care, to O.
A. Omsans, Toledo, O., and the express receipt will be your receipt in full. Also send my other things in a small package, and all will be square between us.

CHAR. A. VINCENT,

Toledo, Ohio.

In reply Marshal Kelley answered that the rifle and other effects of Van Zant (or Vincent, as he now chose to call himself), had been given to his attorney, Mr.
Louis Newberger. Kelley then received the following remarkable letter from O. A. Omsans, of Toledo, with whom the desperado was about to embark in business:

177

Toledo May 25

Mr. Kelley
yours of the 23rd inst came to hand & as to surmises between me & Mr. Newcent first my business is manufacturing Crystal Cement

Mr. Newcent wished to go to the business but he had no clothes to do business with nor no money and he was telling me about his rifle & he wanted to let me have his rifle for security & I told him if his rifle was what he recommended it I would give him some clothes & start him in business & take the rifle for security till he got a little start in the business

I thing Mr. Newcent will make a good man for the business he is here in Toledo waiting for his gun to go into business.

yours truly

O. A. Omsans

Toledo Ohio.

Mr. Kelley again wrote him when he received a note from Vincent to the effect that he would shortly visit this place and would see him and settle with him, as men of his stamp usually do, and "he might spell it K-I-I-I," but Rande never came here again, and Mr. Kelley, and all the others whom he threatened, still live.

Another case was that of Harry Gilmore who was arrested here as a vag, in 1879, by Captain Diehl, and who with his partner was run out of town. Gilmore was a great confidence man and worked the urway and unsuspecting in various methods. He was suspicious of numerous crimes before his appearance upon the Fort Wayne stage, and while here several acts of criminality were laid up to his account, although nothing of a definite character could be proven against him. After leaving here he went to Chicago where he became involved in a row of some description when he pulled a revolver and shot his antagonist dead. He made his escape and was not heard from again until last December, when Captain Diehl received a letter from a friend in San Francisco, saying that Gilmore was there and was plying his usual vocation of gambling between that city and Portland, Oregon.

He was living under the assumed name of Mitchell and could be had whenever wanted. This information was sent to the chief of police at Chicago but it is not known whether any effort was ever made to capture the murderer or not.

Then VanAntwerp, a postal clerk on the Wabash, says that the accident near Decatur last Wednesday was a bad one, and many pitiful scenes were witnessed. The train was running at about forty miles an hour, and when the broken rail was struck, the engine, baggage and mail cars passed over in safety, the passenger coaches leaving the track. Many persons were very severely hurt, the conductor of the Pullman palace car so badly that death resulted Thursday.

Usually large shipments of Cincinnati and Columbus buggies come into the city about this time of the year but it is thought that the shipments this year will not be made for several weeks yet because the factories in Cincinnati were greatly damaged by the flood and at Columbus for other reasons. It is reported that the Pennsylvania people have consented to the restoration of rates to a basis of twenty-one cents per 100 pounds, Chicago to New York, which would make the rate eighteen cents Indianapolis to New York, and the belief in railroad circles is that Commissioner Fink will next week order rates restored to that basis. It is now stated that the report that Bayless W. Hanna, of Crawfordsville, is a brother of Joseph W. Hanna, now under sentence of death in Montana for the murder of N. W. Nelson, is a mistake. Mr. Hanna had but one brother, and he died in California twenty years ago.

The grand jury has presented Judge Hench another report on the jail. They say that Sheriff Schiefer has complied with the recommendations of a former report and now everything about the jail is in good order. The grand jury recommends the removal of a pile of cracked stone from the jail wall to prevent the possibility of communication with the prisoners.

There are no new points in the confession of Davis Smith, the young man who accuses his step-father, Fred Richards, and brother-in-law, Charles West, of murdering Amos Backensto. Richards denies the story stoutly and says the boy has been frightened into a confession. Hon. Robert Stratton says he will have no trouble in puncturing the story fixed up against his client, Richards.

Commencing with the first of this month, and until otherwise notified, the sending of central time from the observatory at St. Louis to every telegraph office on the entire Wabash system of roads will be done at 10 o'clock a. m., which is one hour earlier than heretofore. Repeating instruments have been placed in several of the terminal offices, to send the time exact to way stations which do not have a direct wire.

The Andrews Express has the following gossip about old SENTINEL types: "While in St. Louis last week the editor of the Express renewed an acquaintance of years ago with Orin T. and Leonard Thomas and Ed Bauer, all Fort Wayne printers, at present working on the Globe-Democrat. Many of our citizens are acquainted with the Thomas boys, and will be glad to know that they are in comfortable circumstances and enjoying a fair degree of prosperity."

Theo. Perry, the principal in the robbery of the Wabash express train near Peru about six months ago, got six years in the penitentiary. Perry got $1,500 in the raid; gave $520 to Downer and about the same sum to Bert Loomis, the express messenger. Downer was present at the trial and swore that his share was but a trifle over $200, which was in silver certificates that he deposited in a bank in Detroit. No clue can be had of any of the money now, and the express company will recover none of it. Loomis will not be prosecuted in consideration of assisting in the prosecution of Downer and Perry.

"Oh, I do feel so nice!" said a young girl of nineteen years. "I don't feel as if I had a head or stomach, or anything." And yet headaches, backaches, stomach aches and many other aches, swellings, sores, etc., troubled her before she took Dr. Gray's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. This remedy restored her to perfect health, as is indicated by her clear complexion, smooth skin and bright eyes. It will relieve all ailments peculiar to female life.

We call the following from the columns of the Knoxville Daily Tribune of November 18, 1883, in reference to the Barrett railroad show, which is coming to Fort Wayne on Monday, May 12: "People from all parts of East Tennessee, came to behold Barrett & Co's, great shows. Under the canvas the show was all it had advertised. The menagerie was excellent and the circus performance was very fine. It would be hard to crowd into two hours a more enjoyable entertainment. An immense crowd of people was present at the exhibition."

Many of the bitters and quack nostrums of the day are also advertised for consumption on the plan that the only thing that the stuff won't cure is the aversive, ignoble grief of the proprietor. Don't be deceived. The best remedy for strengthening the lungs, soothing all irritation, and stopping the cough, is Dr. Wistar's Balsam of wild cherry. It has cured many cases where physicians had given up hope.

Last Thursday Cornelius Vanderbilt expressed a wish to be taken from Toledo to Cincinnati on quick time and arrangements made to gratify his wish. The train, which consisted of two coaches, left Toledo at 12:40 p. m., and arrived at Cincinnati at 5:06 the same evening, the distance of 202 miles having been made in four hours and thirty-four minutes, or at the rate of nearly forty-five miles per hour. This time includes all stops for water, etc., and the necessary slowing up at crossings and when running through cities and towns. The train started from Detroit, making the entire trip to Cincinnati, a distance of 268 miles, over the Canada Southern, Dayton and Michigan and Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton roads in five hours and thirty minutes, an average of 50 7-10 miles an hour.

Next Thursday evening the Union Lecture Association will close their season with a lecture by that prince of platform orators, Col. J. P. Sanford. Subject: "Walks in Rome." Certainly none who had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Sanford in his previous visit will fail to hear him again. He is beyond question the most pleasing and eloquent lecturer that has ever graced the platform.

Any attempt to produce a flavor in this or any other country that surpasses Dr. Price's Special Flavoring Extracts will prove a failure, for Dr. Price's are as fresh and nice as the fruits from which they are made, and cannot be improved. Their superiority consists not only in their fruity odor, but also in their delicious taste.

Dows in Pennsylvania last year the people attempted to play a practical joke upon A. J. Cassett, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, and elected him road supervisor. It has not turned out to be such a joke after all, for, to the surprise of all, Mr. Cassett accepted the office. Then began such tearing down and digging up as that old country district never before witnessed. He expected full work, permitted no slouching, and every man who came to work had to put in ten solid hours at a dollar a day. He found himself without men, as farmers preferred to pay tax rather than to be "worked" that way. With this money in hand, he contracted at lower rates, and at this time of the year the township roads look like they never did before.

An exchange says: "It is said there is some talk of nominating Hon. R. W. Thompson for governor and A. G. Porter, the present executive, for lieutenant governor, the latter not being eligible for re-election. Then a resignation on the part of Colonel Thompson after the election would give Governor Porter the place for another term." This is a great scheme, if it could only be made to work. It would be a splendid issue for the republicans to fight the campaign on. Is the party out of timber, or has Mr. Porter scored such a brilliant record during the present term that Mr. Thompson should be made a scapegoat in order to continue him in the position contrary to the intent and purpose of the constitution? Should such a scheme be attempted, there would be no occasion for Mr. Thompson to resign.
